Introduction

The following document updates the previous version of the Part V Resource Pack information published in June 2007 and is offered as guidance to local authority personnel in the consideration of the Part V element of planning applications.

The principal update reflects the changes introduced in the Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015 and the Planning and Development (Amendment) (No. 3) Regulations 2015. These changes relate to:

- (a) the percentage of land that can be reserved for social and affordable housing,
- (b) the options available to satisfy a Part V condition; and
- (c) the information required to be submitted with a planning application.

Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000 as amended by the Planning and Development Act 2002 and the Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015 requires that where a residential development is undertaken, that an agreement be entered into with the planning authority for the provision of social and affordable housing with certain exceptions (see 1.0 below).

This document provides a step-by-step guide to negotiating a Part V agreement, beginning with a diagram of the key steps. More information is then provided about each of these steps.

In addition, this document includes some useful appendices including a summary of information required throughout the Part V negotiation process, a template Part V letter to accompany an SHD application, an illustrative letter of compliance/non-compliance, an outline of some risks to be managed during the negotiation process and an illustrative Chief Executive's order.

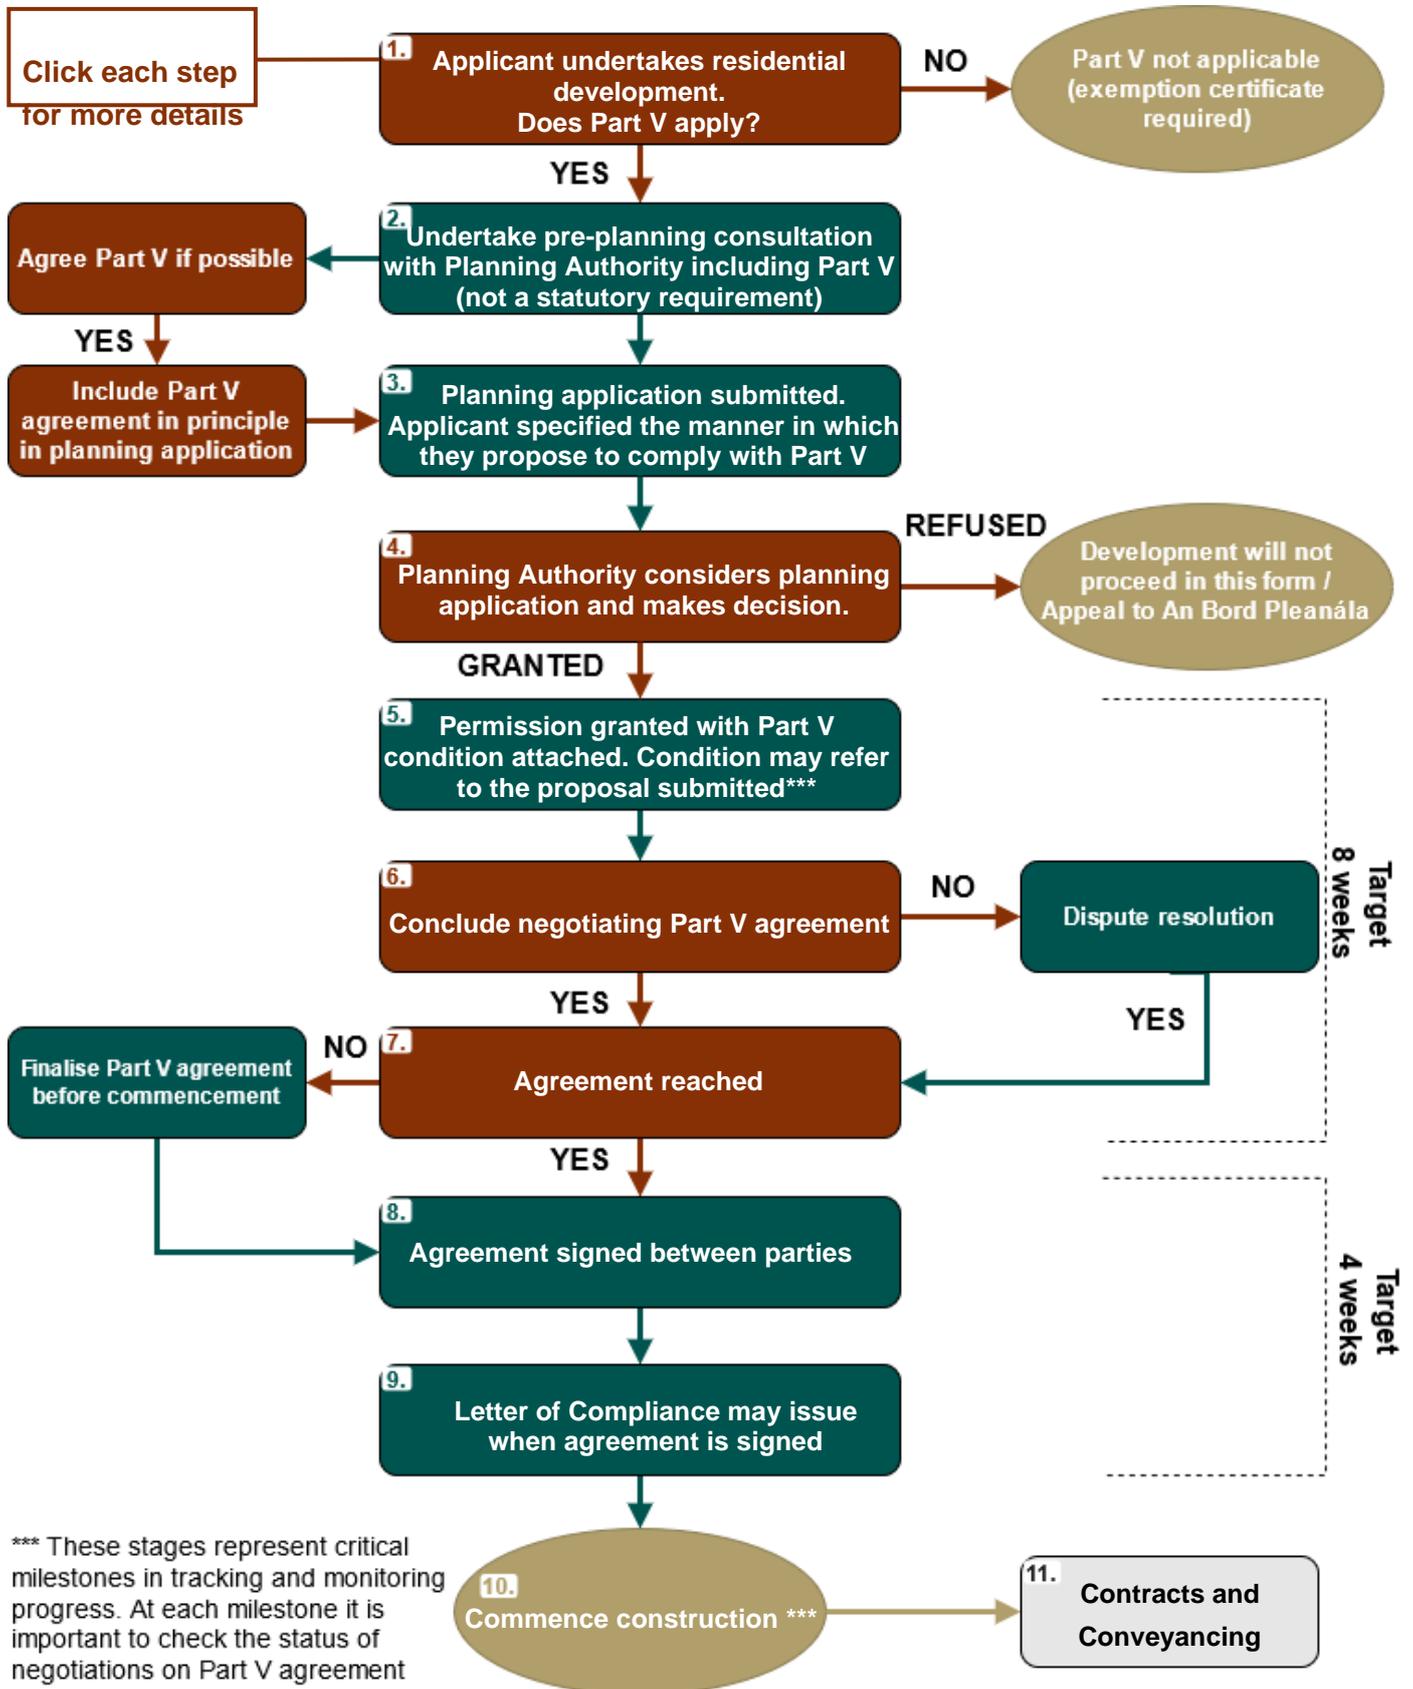

Appendix 6 is a list of circulars relevant to Part V and a brief summary of their contents.

Appendix 7 is a consolidated version of Part V of the Planning and Development Acts 2000 – 2020 which was undertaken by the Law Reform Commission.

Appendix 8 is a copy of the 2017 Guidelines issued by the Minister for Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000.

Appendix 9 is a copy of Chapter 2 of the Development Guidelines for Planning Authorities 2007 on pre-application consultations.

Key Steps in Part V Agreements

1.0 Applicant undertakes residential development, does Part V apply?

If an applicant is considering applying for planning permission for a development of 9 or fewer houses or a development on land of less than 0.1 hectare then they may be able to obtain an exemption certificate by applying to the planning authority before they apply for planning permission (section 97(3) of Planning and Development Acts 2000-2020). There is no provision in legislation to apply for an exemption certificate after planning permission has been applied for or granted.

In addition, as set out in section 96(13) of Planning and Development Acts 2000-2020, Part V does not apply to applications for permission for -

- developments consisting of the provision of houses by an approved housing body for social housing and/or affordable housing, where the AHB is the applicant.
- the conversion of an existing building or the reconstruction of a building to create one or more dwellings provided that at least 50% of the external fabric is retained.
- the carrying out of works to an existing house.
- development of houses under a Part V agreement.

The options to comply with Part V are as follows:

Section 96(3)(a) Planning and Development Act 2000 - 2020

- Transfer of land. This is the default option for the applicant as emphasised by section 96(3)(g)

Section 96(3)(b) Planning and Development Act 2000 - 2020

- Building and transfer of houses.
- Transfer of houses off-site.
- Grant of a lease of houses on or off-site
- A combination of transfer of land under section 96(3)(a) and options under section 96(3)(b).
- A combination of 2 or more of the options under section 96(3)(b).

1.1 Strategic Housing Development

The Planning and Development (Housing) and Residential Tenancies Act 2016 introduced a new planning application process for larger housing development proposals consisting of 100 residential units and/or 200 plus student bed spaces. These are referred to as Strategic Housing Development (SHD) applications and are designed to accelerate housing delivery. Section 4(1) of the Act provides for SHD applications to be made directly to An Bord Pleanála. The SHD process comprises three mandatory stages which include a series of obligations for the applicant, the planning authority and An Bord Pleanála. Detailed guidance on each stage, including relevant application form templates, can be found at: <http://www.pleanala.ie/shd/general/index.htm>

Stage 1: Consultation with the planning authority (under section 247 of the Planning & Development Act, 2000, as amended)

Stage 2: Pre-Application Consultation with An Bord Pleanála (under section 6 of the Planning & Development (Housing) and Residential Tenancies Act, 2016)

Stage 3: Planning Application to be submitted directly to An Bord Pleanála

2.0 Pre-planning consultation with the planning authority

A pre-planning consultation with the relevant planning authority is mandatory for SHD applications and is strongly encouraged for other applicants. The purpose of this engagement is to improve the quality of a subsequent planning application, to avoid the necessity for seeking additional information where possible, and in some cases, to spare the costs of what is likely to prove an abortive application<sup>1</sup>. This engagement allows for initial discussions in respect of fulfilling the Part V obligation.

Section 247 of the Planning & Development Acts 2000-2020 allows for this consultation. The extent of the pre-planning phase will vary depending on the:

- size and complexity of the development;
- location of the development;
- staff resources available to the planning authority and the applicant; and
- whether the development is an SHD development.

The applicant should meet with both Planning and Housing staff. Where possible an agreement in principle on satisfying Part V should be reached prior to the submission of a planning application.

2.1 General requirements of pre-planning consultation

The requirements in relation to pre-planning consultations are dealt with in Chapter 2 of the Department's Development Management Guidelines for Planning Authorities 2007 (Appendix 9 of this document, page 86) including:

- Section 247 consultations – statutory requirements in relation to section 247 consultations (2.5).
- Submission of details in advance of consultations (2.6).
- Pre-application meetings: who should attend? (2.7) – ideally the planning authority should be represented by joint planning and housing teams at least in the initial stage, particularly in relation to more significant developments. Detailed Part V discussions are normally conducted by staff in the housing department.
- How to structure the meeting (2.8).
- Keeping a record of what was discussed (2.9).

For SHD applications, the planning authority is required to facilitate the consultation meeting within 4 weeks of the date it was requested. As per the Planning and Development (Strategic Housing Development) Regulations 2017, the applicant should submit information in respect of the proposal to the planning authority 2 weeks before the date of consultation. It is the responsibility of the planning authority to keep a record of what was discussed at the consultation and to provide the prospective applicant with a copy of these records. They may also be required to submit these records to An Bord Pleanála at a later stage.

2.2 Pre-planning Part V - information provided by the applicant

The first step in the pre-planning consultation process relating to Part V is for applicants to supply the planning authority with information about the proposed development. The following figure provides a checklist of the pre-planning Part V information required of applicants<sup>2</sup> based on best practice to date:

<sup>2</sup>Local Authority Guidelines for the Implementation of Part V of Planning & Development Act 2000 as amended by the Planning & Development (Amendment) Act 2002

Local Authority Considerations

At this juncture the local authority will need to consider

- Is there a housing need in the area?
- What type of dwellings are required to fulfil that need?
- Are the dwelling types likely to be appropriate to meet the likely need?

Target Outcomes

To avoid delays later in the process it is considered helpful at this juncture to, at a minimum, provide feedback to the applicant offering guidance on the outline proposal from a Part V perspective.

2.3 SHD Pre-Application Consultation with An Bord Pleanála

For SHD applications, a second pre-application consultation is required with An Bord Pleanála. This step requires the applicant to submit a 'pre-application consultation request form' to An Bord Pleanála. A copy should also be submitted to the relevant planning authority. The structured document requires the applicant to submit detailed information on the intended development, including a Part V proposal, where applicable. Where An Bord Pleanála is satisfied that the prospective applicant has submitted the required information, they will then convene a consultation meeting within 6 weeks of the day it was requested. The meeting is attended by the prospective applicant, representatives of An Bord Pleanála and representatives of the appropriate Planning authority. Information gathered in this stage is used to assist An Bord Pleanála in the forming of an opinion under section 6(7) of the Act of 2016.

2.4 Guidance on preparing Part V element of planning application

At planning application stage in order to facilitate the local authority's effective consideration of Part V, the following expanded checklist of information required by the applicant, as set out in Figure B below, should be referenced.

Local Authority Considerations

It is recommended that the local authority Housing Section take time in the consideration of the Part V element of the planning application and in the event that major issues are apparent, additional information may be sought at this juncture in preference to allowing a planning application to progress with a potentially unworkable Part V proposal.

Such engagement will potentially avoid delays with the final Part V agreement and assist a more streamlined progression to site.

3.0 Planning application submitted

A planning application should be accompanied with proposals as to how the applicant intends to comply with Part V<sup>4</sup>. The details required to be submitted with the application are set out in Article 22(2)(e) of the Planning and Development Regulations 2001 to 2021, as follows:

(2) A planning application referred to in sub-article (1) shall be accompanied by —

(e) in the case of an application for permission for the development of houses or of houses and other development, to which section 96 of the Act applies, details as to how the applicant proposes to comply with a condition referred to in sub-section (2) of that section to which the permission, if granted, would be subject, including-

(i) details of such part or parts of the land which is subject to the application for permission or is or are specified by the Part V agreement, or houses situated on such aforementioned land or elsewhere in the planning authority's functional area proposed to be transferred to the planning authority, or details of houses situated on such aforementioned land or elsewhere in the planning authority's functional area proposed to be leased to the planning authority or details of any combination of the foregoing, and

(ii) details of the calculations and methodology for calculating values of land, site costs, normal construction and development costs and profit on those costs and other related costs such as an appropriate share of any common development works as required to comply with the provisions of Part V of the Act.

Where it is proposed to transfer land on-site (section 96(3)(a)), this should be clearly identified on an accompanying separate map. Where dwellings are proposed on-site or off-site (section 96(3)(b)(i, iv, iva, vii, viii)), the applicant must indicate in writing the number of dwellings, including types and sizes, proposed to be transferred or leased. In all instances the applicant must indicate the location within the application lands or the indicative location of dwellings off-site, as appropriate.<sup>5</sup>

In selecting an option, the applicant should have regard to the Planning authority's requirement to consider the proposal under section 96(3)(c) as set out in paragraph 4 below which requires the planning authority to have regard to its housing strategy and other matters. Consideration of the leasing of dwellings to satisfy the Part V obligation should be undertaken with reference to Circular Housing 04/2020<sup>6</sup>.

Submission of the agreement in principle reached, if any, and provided it clearly specifies the manner of compliance with Part V, will be sufficient to comply with this requirement.

If the applicant has not specified how they intend to comply with Part V, the planning application should be considered invalid, and the applicant notified accordingly.

3.1 Submitting a SHD Planning Application

Applications for SHDs are required to be submitted directly to An Bord Pleanála. Applications are to be decided within a mandatory 16-week time period which also includes a public consultation period and submission of a report by the planning authority.

Whilst the Part V checklists in Section 2.4. apply to SHD applicants, it is likely that this information has already been discussed in depth and agreed upon at earlier pre-application consultations with the planning authority and An Bord Pleanála. A Part V letter from the planning authority outlining the agreement in principle should therefore also be included in the application. A template Part V letter to accompany SHD applications is provided in Appendix 2 of this document.

4.0 Planning authority considers planning application and makes decision

The planning authority will consider the application and whether Part V is applicable to the proposed development. If Part V is applicable and planning permission is granted, the planning authority will attach a condition to the planning permission requiring the developer to enter into an agreement with the local authority to fulfil their Part V obligations on the site.

5.0 Planning permission granted with Part V condition attached

Where it is decided to grant planning permission, a condition is required under section 96 (2) and the following is intended as suggested wording:

Suggested format of planning condition

"Prior to the lodgement of a commencement notice, the applicant or other person with an interest in the land to which the application relates shall enter into an agreement in writing with the planning authority under section 96 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended).

Reason: To comply with the requirements of Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended), and to comply with the requirements of the housing strategy in the City/County Development Plan and in accordance with the proper planning and sustainable development of the area."

Alternative wording of planning condition

If preferred by the planning authority, an additional clause can be added at the end of the Part V planning condition stating:

"unless the applicant has applied for and been granted an Exemption Certificate under section 97 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (as amended) or unless the development is a development to which Part V does not apply in accordance with section 96(13)."

6.0 Conclude Part V agreement

In concluding a Part V agreement following the granting of planning permission, the planning authority shall also consider under section 96(3)(h):

- proper planning and sustainable development of the area;
- the housing strategy and the relevant Development Plan specific objectives;
- overall coherence of the development;
- the view of the applicant in relation to the impact of the agreement on the development.

The Part V Agreement is a legally binding document. Its content will depend on the option agreed for compliance with Part V.

Where an alternative option other than land on-site is proposed to satisfy a Part V Agreement e.g. transfer of dwellings, the planning authority is obliged to consider the applicant's proposal in accordance with section 96(3)(c)<sup>7</sup>.

In considering this the local authority is required to consider the following:

1. Whether the proposed agreement will contribute effectively and efficiently to the achievement of the objectives of the housing strategy.
2. Whether the agreement will constitute the best use of the resources available to it to ensure an adequate supply of housing and any financial implications of the agreement for its functions as a housing authority.
3. The need to counteract undue segregation in housing between persons of different social background in the area of the authority.
4. Whether the agreement is in accordance with the provisions of the development plan.
5. The time within which housing referred to in section 94(4)(a) is likely to be provided as a consequence of the agreement.

Notwithstanding the above it is strongly recommended that planning authorities accept compliance by way of the provision of dwellings on-site, wherever possible, provided it meets the objectives in the Housing strategy.

6.1 Guidance on preparing Part V negotiation material

On receipt of planning permission with a Part V condition, if an agreement is not already in place, the final negotiation of Part V must progress as soon as possible and at latest within 8 weeks from the date of the grant of permission to avoid any issue pursuing agreement by way of arbitration, should it be so required.

Figure C below sets out the information required of the applicant once the option to meet Part V requirements is agreed and final negotiations commence. This checklist is a more comprehensive version of the pre-planning checklist provided in Figure B in Section 2.4.

Where a pre-planning consultation has not taken place, the information required as set out in Figure B in Section 2.4 will be required prior to a decision on the planning application. Where partial information has previously been lodged as part of pre-planning etc. discussions, it will be helpful that the final Part V application be collated as one comprehensive document at Part V negotiation stage to ensure that all information can be referenced with ease within the negotiations.

6.2 Calculation of Financial Compensation to be paid by the planning authority for land transferred

Where an agreement is reached under section 96(3)(a) for the transfer of land, the amount to be paid by the planning authority to the applicant for this land is the existing use value (EUV) on the date the planning permission was granted. If, however, the land was bought by the applicant prior to the 25th August 1999, please refer to section 96(6)(a) of the Planning & Development Acts 2000-2020.

For example, if a site has an existing use value (EUV) of €300,000, the applicant transfers 10% of the site to the ownership of the local authority in return for a payment of €30,000. Part V is then satisfied for that site.

6.3 Calculation of the equivalent to the “net monetary value” of land transferred

Where an agreement is reached under section 96(3)(b) for the transfer of property, or the lease referred to in section 96(3)(b)(iva) the financial benefit arising to the planning authority for such transactions should be equivalent to the net monetary value that would have accrued if the agreement was for the transfer of land.

The net monetary value (NMV) is the open market/development value (DV) of the land to be transferred less the existing use value of that land i.e.  $NMV = DV - EUV$

Illustrative example of Net Monetary Value:

The development plan has indicated that 10% of land zoned for residential/mixed use should be reserved for social and affordable housing in the relevant area.

Assuming that a development of 30 dwellings to which Part V applies is proposed for a site in the area with a developed value of €900,000. The existing use value of the site is €300,000. Figure E below sets out the net monetary value calculation for this example.

Net Monetary Value Calculation

Development Value (DV) €900,000 – Existing Use Value (EUV) €300,000) x 10% requirement = €60,000

The net monetary value (NMV) for 10% of the site is therefore €60,000, that is if the planning authority buys 10% of the site for €30,000 it now owns a piece of land that is worth €90,000.

Detailed guidance on calculating the net monetary value and equating it to the number and type of dwellings to be transferred is provided in Section 3.3. of the 2017 Guidelines issued by the Minister for Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000<sup>10</sup>.

In addition, the net monetary value cannot always be achieved across an even number of dwellings. Guidance on calculating balancing payments is also provided in the above Guidelines.

6.4 Calculation of the Financial Compensation to be paid by the planning authority for housing

A critical part of the negotiation is the method for calculating compensation, i.e. the amount to be paid by the planning authority to the applicant for the transfer or lease of dwellings. An overview of how to calculate the level of compensation to the applicant is outlined below.

6.4.1 Transfer of dwellings to be constructed on-site or off-site

Figure F below sets out the compensation for dwellings to be constructed either on-site as part of the development or off-site on other land in the functional area of the planning authority. In accordance with section 96(3)(d) the price is determined on the basis of:

- Site cost based on existing use value; and
- the costs, including normal construction and development costs and profit on those costs, calculated at open market rates that would have been incurred by the planning authority had it retained an independent builder to undertake the works, including the appropriate share of any common development works, as agreed between the authority and the developer.

Nature of cost	Illustrative amount
1. Construction costs (ex VAT and builders profit) <sup>11</sup>	€140,000
2. Builder's profit (e.g. 7.5%)	€10,500
3. Share of common development costs	€15,000
4. Land costs generally at existing land use value	€2,000
5. VAT @13.5%	€22,613
Total	€190,113

6.4.2 Transfer of dwellings already constructed off-site

For dwellings that are already constructed and are being acquired by the applicant, the price to be paid by the local authority may be calculated by way of the acquisition price less the net monetary value applicable to the land to which the Part V obligation applies. The local authority might consider what sum would have been paid had the dwelling been constructed as part of the scheme to which the planning application applies, and which sum would not reasonably be expected to be exceeded.

6.4.3 Lease option agreement for dwellings on-site or off-site

2017 Guidelines issued by the Minister for Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (Appendix 8 of this document, page 65) set out that, in overall terms, the priority option to satisfy Part V is the acquisition of housing on the development site, by means of transfer of ownership to the local authority or to an Approved Housing Body. However, the leasing of dwellings to satisfy the Part V obligation may, in some instances, be a more practicable option for the local authority in two scenarios.

In the case of "Build to Rent" apartment developments, Part V options for the acquisition or transfer of completed dwellings may not be possible given that these developments have a specific planning condition requiring that the properties are not sold individually for a period of time, usually 15 years.

In circumstances where a developer offers substantially more dwellings than what could be acquired under a Part V agreement for leasing, local authorities may consider whether leasing is a suitable option given its need for housing in the area and whether the number of dwellings offered is suitable from a sustainable communities perspective. Further guidance on when to use leasing to satisfy Part V is provided in Circular 04/2020.

There are two long-term leasing schemes available to local authorities that are suitable for Part V, standard long-term leasing and enhanced leasing. Dwellings are leased in exchange for a rent set initially at a proportion of the Open Market Rent; at up to 80/85% for standard leasing and 95% for enhanced leasing. Rents are reviewed every 3 years by reference to the Harmonised Index of Consumer Prices (HICP). Both schemes provide lease terms of up to 25 years<sup>12</sup>.

There are two options available to satisfy the Part V condition and achieve the net monetary value in the form of a reduction in the lease payment:

- Option 1 – Up-front rent-free period
- Option 2 – Discounted Rent over the term or a portion of the term of the lease (i.e. any period longer than a possible rent free period)

The number of Part V dwellings considered for leasing should, in general, align with the number of dwellings that a local authority might purchase<sup>13</sup> unless the decision to lease is based on the availability of significant additional dwellings.

Further guidance on calculating the up-front rent-free period and calculating the discounted rent over the term of the lease is provided in Circular 04/2020.

<sup>13</sup> See Section 3.3. of 2017 Guidelines issued by the Minister for Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (Appendix 8 of this document, page 65)

7.0 Agreement reached

A Part V agreement must be reached prior to the submission of a commencement notice, in accordance with the planning permission and applicable legislation.

Should a developer proceed to lodge a commencement notice in the absence of a Part V agreement, the development would be in breach of its planning conditions.

8.0 Agreement signed between parties

Formal agreement on Part V is signed between the applicant and the planning authority.

9.0 Letter of compliance in relation to Part V condition may issue by the planning authority

The planning authority may issue a letter of compliance in the following circumstances:

- Where a Part V agreement is in place; or
- Where matters have been referred to the property arbitrator and there is clarity in relation to the number and types of dwellings to be provided under Part V, if this is the proposed option.

10.0 Commence construction

Following signing of the Part V agreement, the applicant can submit a commencement notice and begin construction. Development should be tracked, by the planning authority, in order to ensure compliance with the Part V agreement and early delivery of housing where applicable. Where the applicant does not appear to be complying with the Part V agreement, the planning authority should engage with the applicant and, in the absence of progress, may consider legal proceedings on the basis of the contract.

11.0 Contracts and conveyancing

Matters of contracts between the applicant and the planning authority should be addressed at an early stage, to avoid subsequent delays. The local authority should initiate the process of issuing conveyancing and purchase contracts as early as possible in the process. In addition, both the planning authority and the applicant should nominate a designated individual who will ensure that all the steps are in place to complete the transfer and early occupation of houses. This will ensure that households can be allocated to the designated houses as soon as possible after the transfer has completed.

One issue worth noting is that under the provisions of section 23 (1)(b) of the Registration of Title Act 1964, statutory authorities (including local authorities and the State) are obliged to apply for first registration of all unregistered land acquired by them. The Registration of Title Act came into effect on 1st January 1967. The local authority registers the land with the Property Registration Authority of Ireland. In order to do this, they need to show good title and to have the site mapped. Where a site is not registered with the Property Registration Authority of Ireland, it is important to address the matter at an early stage to avoid subsequent delays.

11.1 Direct Sales

It is recommended that local authorities adopt the direct sales approach for the sale of affordable homes. One of the major benefits to local authorities in adopting this approach will be the elimination of the need to buy the unit from the builder, register its title and sell on to the affordable housing applicant. This should result in significant administrative savings and a quicker and more effective delivery process.

The details are set out in Appendix B of DoEHLG Circular AHS 4/06 Part V of the Planning and Development Acts 2000 – 2006, Implementation Issues.

12.0 Transitional arrangements

Section 33(2) of the Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015 provides for an existing Part V agreement in place before 1st September 2015, where a commencement notice has not been submitted, to be re-negotiated under the provisions of section 96 as revised by that Act. For further information see the 2017 Guidelines issued by the Minister for Housing, Planning, Community and Local Government under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 (Appendix 8 of this document, page 65).

Appendix 4. Risks to be managed during the Part V process

Based on experience of negotiating Part V agreements to date, there are a number of potential risks and issues that can either unnecessarily delay the conclusion of a Part V agreement, or that affect the nature of the agreement negotiated. These are summarised as follows:

Potential Risk Factor	How it affects the process
Protracted negotiations	This is one of the key risks that can affect the outcome, leading to an unsatisfactory agreement for all parties. A number of factors can contribute to protracted negotiations: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Unrealistic figures on building costs provided by either party.</li> <li>• Lack of skills/competence on both sides</li> <li>• Changes in personnel involved in negotiation</li> <li>• Lack of time on length of benchmarks to progress agreements</li> <li>• Lack of clarity on the authority of individuals to negotiate</li> <li>• Not all key parties are involved in the negotiation</li> <li>• Length of time in determining valuations</li> </ul>
Insufficient attention to pre-consultation process	The pre-consultation time is critical in clarifying the nature and scope of the development and how it will meet Part V requirements. It allows all parties to carefully scope what is involved in the development and what both parties require. Clarity on the development and Part V requirements at this stage will ensure a speedier transition through the different stages of the planning cycle.
Differing interpretations of the legislation	Causes uncertainty in negotiating Part V agreements.
Insufficient documentation to enable full discussion	This can lead to issues arising late in the negotiation process that could have been anticipated earlier. Appendix 1 provides a checklist of documentation required to facilitate negotiations.

Imprecise wording on the terms of the Part V agreement

See Appendix 5 – Chief Executive’s Order which can be used as a template for concluding agreements

The best way to ensure that these factors are managed during the negotiation phase is to follow the best practice guidelines in negotiating Part V (see Key Steps in Part V Agreements).

statutory declaration, information or documentation, as the case may be, to which the offence relates, and such sum shall, when paid in accordance with such order, stand forfeited.

- (20) All sums that stand forfeited under subsection (19) shall be paid to the planning authority that granted the certificate concerned and shall be accounted for in the account referred to in section 96\(13\) and be applied only for the purposes specified in that section.

Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000: Guidelines under section 28

1. Introduction

As local authorities are aware, Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000 was amended with effect from 1 September 2015. Since 31 August 2015, 2 guidance circulars have been issued by the Department and one Guideline under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000:

Circular Housing 33 of 2015 of 31 August 2015

Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015 – amendments to the operation of Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000.

Circular PL 10/2015 and Housing 36/2015 of 30 November 2015

Part V - Implementation of Article 22(2)(e) of the Planning and Development Regulations 2001, as amended – Validation of Planning Applications.

Guidelines on Application of Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000, after 1 September 2015, to developments granted permission prior to 1 September 2015, May 2016.

This current Guideline deals with specific issues, largely in relation to the making of the Part V agreement, having regard to the 2015 legislative changes, which have been raised in discussions with local authorities, developers and other stakeholders. These Guidelines are issued under section 28 of the Planning and Development Act 2000 and planning authorities are required to have regard to them in carrying out their functions under the Act.

It may be noted that a large number of Circulars and Guidance documents were issued in relation to Part V in the period from 2000 to 2012. These are set out in the Appendix. Some of these Circulars/Guidance documents are not currently relevant (e.g. those relating to affordable housing) and other existing Guidance documents, e.g. the 2000 Guidelines for Planning Authorities on Part V of the Planning and Development Act, 2000 on Housing Supply and the Model Housing Strategy require some updating. The advice here supersedes any differing advice on any particular issue given in earlier Guidance/Circulars referred to above. A copy of any of the earlier guidance documents may be obtained from the Department on request.

The making of a Part V agreement is a function under the Planning and Development Act 2000, and the appropriate reference in relation to such functions should be to “planning authorities”. However some of the actions referred to in these Guidelines will be carried out by the Housing Department/Section of the local authority. The term “local authority” is generally used throughout this document therefore (other than when quoting from the Planning Act).

2. Prior to grant of planning permission

2.1 Application of Part V

The first issue to be addressed is whether Part V actually applies: if the applicant applies for planning permission for a development of 9 or fewer houses or a development of houses on land of less than 0.1 hectare they can be exempted from Part V. The applicant will need to obtain an exemption certificate by applying to the local authority prior submitting to a planning application (section 97). The change in the minimum number of units from the previous 4 to 9 was effected by the Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015 and is effective from 1 September 2015.

Other exemptions (section 96(13)) include:

- provision of houses by an approved body for social housing and/or affordable housing;
- conversion of an existing building or the reconstruction of a building to create one or more dwellings provided that at least 50% of the external fabric is retained;
- carrying out works to an existing house;
- development of houses under a Part V agreement.

2.2 Early consideration of Part V issues/pre-planning consultation

Consideration of Part V issues should commence at the earliest point possible. When a request is received for a pre-planning consultation the Planning Department of the local authority should inform the Housing Department of the proposal. It is important that the Housing and Planning Departments of the local authorities reach a shared vision in relation to the efficient delivery of appropriately located Part V units on the site, having regard to the Housing Strategy of the local authority, which of course is required to specifically to take into account -

- the existing need and the likely future need for social housing;
- the need to ensure that housing is available for persons who have different levels of income;
- the need to ensure that a mixture of house types and sizes is developed to reasonably match the requirements of the different categories of households, as may be determined by the local authority, and including the special requirements of elderly persons and persons with disabilities, and
- the need to counteract undue segregation in housing between persons of different social backgrounds.

It is important therefore that there is communication/contact between both sections at the earliest point following notification by the developer of a request for a pre-planning meeting.

The Housing Department may wish to contact the developer to inform him/her of the social housing requirements for the site and/or to invite the developer for preliminary discussions in relation to Part V, i.e. in advance of the pre-planning consultation. The developer is not of course obliged to attend discussions. In any event it is essential that all parties engage at the pre-planning meeting, in order to establish the acceptability of the principle of the development and set out parameters for design concepts etc., following which further discussion could take place between the developer and the Housing Department. It is important that the developer be informed of the social housing requirements for the site at the earliest stage so that this can be taken into account in the design of the development, e.g. the type of unit the local authority is interested in acquiring.

Where the local authority is considering using an Approved Housing Body (AHB) to deliver Part V, the views of the developer in relation to a possible partner AHB may also be obtained at this stage, although the selection of an AHB is ultimately a matter for the local authority. Preliminary discussions can also take place regarding number of units, costs, local market rent, etc. At this stage the local authority should inform the Department of indicative costs.

The Housing Department should be represented, at an appropriate level of seniority, at the formal pre-planning consultation under section 247 of the Planning and Development Act 2000. Where the developer has not attended a preliminary discussion with the Housing Department, the matters set out in the paragraph above should be discussed with the developer or his/her agent at the pre-planning meeting.

Where the local authority proposes to involve an AHB, having heard any views of the developer on this issue, they may wish to consider whether the body in question should also be invited to the pre-planning consultation, subject to other considerations e.g. confidentiality. The local authority should also discuss the cost of the units with the AHB at an early stage.

The requirements in relation to pre-planning consultations are dealt with at Chapter 2 of the Department's Development Management Guidelines for Planning Authorities 2007,

<http://www.housing.gov.ie/sites/default/files/migrated-files/en/Publications/DevelopmentandHousing/Planning/FileDownload%2C14467%2Cen.pdf>

including

- Section 247 consultations – statutory requirements in relation to section 247 consultations (2.5);
- Submission of details in advance of consultations (2.6);
- Pre-application meetings: who should attend? (2.7);
- How should a pre-application meeting be structured? (2.8);
- Keeping a record of what was discussed (2.9)

2.3 Planning application

When the planning application is made, it must be accompanied by the developer's proposals for complying with Part V. This matter was the subject of a detailed guidance Circular issued on 30 November 2015, Circular PL 10/2015 and Housing 36/2015.

The proposal is not required to be overly detailed but must contain:

- how the applicant intends to discharge his/her Part V obligation as regards a selection of a preferred option from the options available under the Act;
- details in relation to the units or land to be provided; and
- indicative costs.

As stated above, detailed advice is given in Circular PL 10/2015 and Housing 36/2015, which it is not proposed to repeat here.

A copy of the planning application, including the Part V proposal, should be sent by the Planning Department to the Housing Department, or the Housing Department should be notified of the availability of the application.

Where it is decided to grant permission for the development, it is essential that the Part V condition comply with section 96(2) of the Act, as amended. It is recommended that the planning condition should adhere closely to the wording of section 96(3) and include e.g.

“that the applicant, or any other person with an interest in the land to which the application relates shall, prior to the lodgement of a commencement notice within the meaning of Part II of the Building Control Regulations 1997, enter into an agreement with the planning authority under section 96 of the Planning and Development Act 2000, providing, in accordance with that section, for the matters referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of subsection (3) of section 96.

3. Making of Part V agreement

3.1 Options for agreement

Following the grant of planning permission the Planning Department should inform the Housing Department of the grant of permission; it is possible that the latter Department might have to review its Part V intentions in the light of the permission as granted. The Housing Department should contact the developer at this point to open substantial negotiations in relation to the Part V agreement.

The guidance in this section refers to the making of the Part V agreement from the commencement of the discussions/negotiations for such agreement, which as stated above, will commence at the pre-planning application consultation, if not prior to that, in consultations between the developer and the Housing Department.

Section 96(3) of the Act, as amended, deals with the making of the Part V agreement.

As stated in the Guidelines on Application of Part V of Planning and Development Act 2000, after 1 September 2015, to developments granted permission prior to 1 September 2015, May 2016, the provisions of the amended Part V apply to all agreements made after 1st September 2015.

In accordance with section 33(2) of the Urban Regeneration and Housing Act 2015, Part V agreements made prior to 1 September 2015, where a commencement notice had not been lodged by that date, may be amended prior to the lodgement of such commencement notice, with the consent of both parties, provided that the amended agreement complies with the provisions of section 96 as amended (including the 10% figure instead of the previous 20%).

Section 96(3) sets out the 6 types of Part V agreement that may be made.

1. Transfer to the ownership of the local authority of a part or parts of the land subject to the planning application (section 96(3) paragraph (a)).
2. Build and transfer to the ownership of the local authority, or persons nominated by the authority, of a number of housing units on the site subject to the planning application (section 96(3) paragraph (b)(i)). (Up to 10% of the units in the development).
3. Transfer to the ownership of the local authority, or persons nominated by the authority, of housing units on any other land in the functional area of the local authority (section 96(3) paragraph (b)(iv)).
4. Grant a lease of housing units to the local authority, either on the site subject to the planning application or on any other land within the functional area of the local authority (section 96(3) paragraph (b)(iva)). This is a new option, inserted in 2015.
5. A combination of the transfer of the ownership of land under paragraph (a) of section 96(3) and one or more of the options at paragraph (b)(i), (b)(iv) and (b)(iva) of section 96(3) (section 96(3) paragraph (b)(vii)). That is, a combination of a transfer of land and one or more of the other options.

6. A combination of 2 or more of the options set out at paragraphs (b)(i), (b)(iv) and (b)(iva) of section 96(3), i.e. a combination of options not including a transfer of the ownership of land (section 96(3) paragraph (b)(viii)).

Table A below sets out the information required from the applicant in connection with the Part V negotiation.

As was the case prior to September 2015 the position is that where the developer wishes to fulfil the Part V obligation by way of the transfer of land, on the site the subject of the planning application, to the local authority, this must be accepted by the local authority.

Where the developer does not wish to exercise the option of transferring land under section 96(3)(a), the local authority should consider which type of agreement it should enter into of the 6 options set out above.

In considering this the local authority is required to consider the following, pursuant to section 96(3)(c) of the Act:

- (i) whether the proposed agreement will contribute effectively and efficiently to the achievement of the objectives of the housing strategy;
- (ii) whether the agreement will constitute the best use of the resources available to it to ensure an adequate supply of housing and any financial implications of the agreement for its functions as a housing authority;
- (iii) the need to counteract undue segregation in housing between persons of different social background in the area of the authority;
- (iv) whether the agreement is in accordance with the provisions of the development plan;
- (v) the time within which housing referred to in section 94(4)(a) is likely to be provided as a consequence of the agreement.

Under section 96(3)(h) the local authority is also required to consider:

- (i) the proper planning and sustainable development of the area to which the application relates;
- (ii) the housing strategy and the specific objectives of the development plan which relate to the implementation of the strategy;
- (iii) the need to ensure the overall coherence of the development to which the application relates, where appropriate, and
- (iv) the views of the applicant in relation to the impact of the agreement on the development.

Where it is not possible for the local authority to conclude an agreement which meets with its needs under section 96(3)(b)(i), (iv), (iva), (vii) or (viii) then the default position applies, section 96(3)(a), and the agreement must provide for the transfer of land to the local authority.

It is considered that the priority option which should be pursued by local authorities is the acquisition of social housing on the development site, by means of transfer of ownership to the local authority or to an AHB. While the option of leasing was inserted into the Act in 2015, the main purpose of this was to enable Part V agreements to continue to be made in cases where insufficient capital funding is available for the acquisition of units. As units leased may revert to the developer at the end of the lease period, and hence be removed from the local authority's social housing stock, the aims of Part V, and of the Government's social housing policy, will be better achieved by the acquisition of houses, rather than leasing. Accordingly it is recommended that where capital funding is available, including through AHBs, the local authority should seek the acquisition of houses on the development site.

Local authorities may also wish to consider whether the Part V units should be purchased upfront, as provided for in Rebuilding Ireland – Action Plan for Housing and Homelessness, in order to support the development of private housing in a particular area. Further guidance in this regard will be issued.

The acquisition of units on the site of the development is the recommended option in order to advance the aim of achieving a social mix in new developments. This option should be pursued by the local authority from its earliest engagement with the developer, with a view to acquiring houses which meet its social housing requirements for that area/site.

It is recognised that there may be occasional cases where none of the units on the sites are suited to the needs of the local authority. Every effort should however be made by the local authority, by engagement with the developer at the design stage of the project, to ensure that units suitable for the local authority's needs are included in the project. The local authority is also, as set out above, required to consider whether the agreement constitutes the best use of financial resources, and in some cases it may be that acquiring units in the development would not be an efficient use of resources.

These situations might occur where:

- the size of units is unsuitable for the local authority;
- the land or development costs are particularly high;
- the units are of significantly higher specification than would be the case in a local authority own housing project;
- there are excessive annual management fees associated with the development.

In these cases the local authority must pursue one of the other available options e.g. the acquisition of land on the development site (section 96(3)(a)) or the building or acquisition by the developer of houses/units elsewhere in the functional area of the local authority, and the transfer of those houses to the local authority or persons nominated by the local authority, including an AHB (section 96(3)(b)(iv)).

While the Act does not specify this as a requirement, it is recommended that the number of houses transferred by the developer under section 96(3)(b)(iv) should be broadly equivalent to the number that would have been transferred had the local authority been able to secure agreement for the provision of houses on the development site. In any case, whatever number of houses are transferred the net monetary value must be achieved by the local authority (see 3.3 below).

In view of the track-record of the voluntary and cooperative housing sector, and of the fact that approved housing bodies are uniquely placed to help overcome vertical segregation in housing, approved housing bodies remain at the heart of the Government's vision for housing provision. This is recognised in the enhanced role given to AHBs in the Social Housing Strategy 2020 and in Rebuilding Ireland, the Action Plan for Housing and Homelessness. Accordingly local authorities should strongly consider the involvement of AHBs in its implementation of Part V.

3.2 Priority to be given to making of Part V agreement

As the grant of permission will now contain a condition requiring that the Part V agreement be entered into by the developer/other person with an interest in the land to which the development relates, prior to the lodgement of a commencement notice under the Building Control Regulations 1997, the Part V agreement must be entered into before the development can lawfully commence.

It is crucial therefore that there is no delay at all by the local authority as regards the making of the Part V agreement; all requests from the developer/for meetings, information etc. should be responded to promptly. The local authority should also obtain any required valuations as quickly as possible. Both the local authority and the developer should respond to any submission/request for information from the other within a 2 week period.

Where a provisional Part V agreement was in place prior to the granting of permission, and the grant of permission changes the proposed number of units, the local authority should renegotiate the agreement where this is necessary, without delay.

Section 96(8) of the Act was amended in 2015 to provide that the local authority, in addition to, as previously provided, the applicant or any other person with an interest in the land to which the application relates, may, in cases where the Part V agreement is not entered into before the expiration of 8 weeks from the date of the grant of permission, because of a dispute:

- (a) refer the dispute under that subsection to the An Bord Pleanála except
- (b) where the dispute relates to a matter falling within section 96(7), in which case the dispute may be referred to a property arbitrator appointed under section 2 of the Property Values (Arbitration and Appeals) Act, 1960.

Local authorities should ensure that negotiations with the developer are commenced during the 8 week period after the grant of permission, so that if it subsequently becomes necessary to refer issues to An Bord Pleanála or the Property Arbitrator, the condition of there having been a dispute, or at least a failure to reach agreement, in the 8 weeks following the grant of permission, will have been met. (In a case where there was no contact between a local authority and a developer in this 8 week period, it might be argued that as there was no contact, it could not be said that "because of a dispute" the agreement was not entered into prior to the expiration of this period, and that the necessary condition for referring a matter to An Bord Pleanála or the Property Arbitrator has not therefore been met).

Where a matter has been referred to the An Bord Pleanála or the Property Arbitrator, and both sides are agreed to abide by the adjudication of the Board or the Arbitrator, as the case may be, it should be possible to conclude the Part V agreement on this basis, so that the development can commence.

Where funding is being sought from the Department, whether by a local authority or an AHB, the approval of the Department should be obtained before the Part V agreement is finalised. However, the approval of the Department need not be sought, prior to the making of the Part V agreement, for the capital acquisition of houses by the local authority under Part V in cases where the price of the units do not exceed the Department's unit cost ceilings, in cases where the total value of the acquisition is less than €600,000 (see Circulars Housing 24/2015 and Housing 28/2015).

If the local authority considers that the units should be purchased upfront, the Department should be advised as soon as possible, so that the requisite approval can be obtained in good time and any delays in commencing the development can be avoided.

3.3 "Net monetary value"

Section 96(3)(b) provides that whichever option a local authority pursues

- the "net monetary value" of the property transferred, or
- the reduction in the rent payable by the local authority over the term of a lease (pursuant to paragraph (iva) of the subsection) must be equivalent to the net monetary value of the land that the local authority would receive if the Part V agreement had provided for a transfer of land under section 96(3)(a). The "net monetary value" here is defined as the market value less the existing use value.

Existing use value is defined in section 96(6) as the value of the land calculated by reference to its existing use on the date on which the permission was granted for the development on the basis that on that date it would have been, and would thereafter have continued to be, unlawful to carry out any development in relation to that land other than exempted development. That is, the existing use value is calculated as of the date permission was granted, but as if permission had not been granted and would never be granted.

The market value should also be calculated by reference to the date on which planning permission was granted.

Accordingly, the "net monetary value" which the local authority must achieve, in any Part V agreement other than an agreement for the transfer of land, is the difference between the existing use value of the land it would have acquired, normally 10% of the site, and the market value of that piece of land. Essentially the net monetary value that must be achieved by the local authority is 10% of the difference between the existing use value of the site and the market value of the site, calculated on the date that planning permission was granted for the development.

For instance where the existing use value of the site on the date of the grant of planning permission is €100,000 and the market value of the site on that date is €500,000, the net monetary value to be achieved by the local authority, in any agreement other than acquiring 10% of the land, is €40,000 (10% of the difference).

Housing developments

Where the Part V agreement is to transfer units, the price to be paid by the local authority for the houses (see section 96(3)(d)) is the site costs of the houses and the construction/development costs (see below).

In the case of the transfer of units, the Act does not set out a methodology for calculating the net monetary value of the units to be transferred, but as the building costs are recouped in full, the net monetary value must be assessed by reference to land being transferred. Accordingly it is necessary to attribute appropriate land costs to each unit being transferred in order to calculate the net monetary value being achieved.

In the case of housing developments, where the houses are generally on similar sized plots, the local authority will normally achieve the net monetary value where it acquires 10% of the houses, paying existing use value for the plots/sites (and refunding the construction costs and development costs to the developer), as the following example shows.

Example

A development of 20 houses on a site of 6000 sq. m.

Existing use value of site €100,000

Market value €400,000

Net monetary value to be achieved by local authority €30,000, that is, 10% of €300,000 (€400,000 - €100,000) the difference between the market value and the existing use value of the site.

Assume each house sits on a plot of 210 sq.m. (the houses comprise 70% of the site, 4200 sq. m, i.e. each plot comprises 3.5% of the site).

Each house therefore is deemed to have an apportioned land cost of €5,000 (€100,000 ÷ 20) existing use value and €20,000 (€400,000 ÷ 20) market value, and for each house the local authority acquires paying existing use value for the plot it makes a gain of €15,000. In taking 2 houses – 10% of the houses – the local authority gains €30,000, which is the net monetary value.

Where the plots are of substantially different sizes, local authorities might attribute land costs per square metre, as set out below.

Example

Site 12,000 sq. m. existing use value €250,000, market value €700,000. Net monetary value = €45,000, that is 10% of €450,000 (€700,000 - €250,000), which is the difference between the existing use value and the market value of the site.

15 plots of 320 sq.m. = 4,800

15 plots of 210 sq. m.= 3,150

Total = 7,950 sq.m.

The combined size of all the plots is 7,950 sq. m. The attributable land cost per sq. m of plot = €31.44 existing use value ( $€250,000 \div 7,950$ ), €88.05 market value ( $€700,000 \div 7,950$ ). Therefore for each square metre of plot the local authority acquires paying existing use value it makes a gain of €56.60 ( $€88.05 - €31.44$ ).

The local authority decides to acquire 3 houses – 10% of the houses.

In a case where the local authority takes 2 of the houses on the larger plots, and 1 of the houses on the smaller plots, it acquires 850 sq. m. ( $320 \times 2$  and  $210 \times 1$ ) and, paying existing use value for the plots, it realises a net monetary value of €48,110 ( $850 \times €56.60$ ) which exceeds the required monetary value of €45,000; this excess should be paid to the developer in addition to the construction and development costs.

The reverse situation would apply where the local authority acquires 2 of the houses on the smaller plots, and 1 of the houses on the larger plots. In this case, in acquiring 740 sq. m. ( $320 \times 1$  and  $210 \times 2$ ) at existing use value, it realises a net monetary value of €41,884 ( $740 \times €56.60$ ), which is short of the required monetary value of €45,000; the shortfall can be deducted from the construction and development costs due to the developer.

Apartment developments

Again an approach based on units can be taken where the apartments in the development are of similar sizes.

Take for example a development of 200 apartments.

The existing use value of the land is €48,000, and the market value after the grant of planning permission is €480,000. €43,200 is therefore the net monetary value (10% of €432,000 which is the difference between €480,000 and €48,000) that must be achieved in the Part V agreement.

Where the apartments are of equal size and the local authority acquires 10% of the apartments, it will automatically realise the net monetary value as set out in Example 1 below.

Example 1

Where the apartments are of equal size, we can say the attributable land costs for each apartment is €240 existing use value ( $€48,000 \div 200$ ), and €2,400 market value ( $€480,000 \div 200$ ). In acquiring 20 apartments, paying a land cost of €240 per apartment, the local authority is making a gain of €2160 per apartment ( $€2,400 - €240$ ) or a total gain of €43,200 ( $€2,160 \times 20$ ). That is, it has achieved the required net monetary value.

Where the apartments are of different sizes, it is suggested that the land costs might be apportioned per square metre of floor area to ensure the local authority achieves the net monetary value, as set out in Example 2 below.

Example 2

The 200 apartments comprise –

50 No. 3-bed (100 sq. m. each - total for all apartments 5,000 sq. m)

120 No. 2-bed (80 sq. m. each - total for all apartments 9,600 sq. m)

30 No. 1-bed (65 sq. m. each -total for all apartments 1,950 sq. m)

Adding the total floor area of all the apartments gives us 16,550 sq.m. Therefore we can say that the land costs attributable to each square metre of floor area are €2.90 existing use value ( $€48,000 \div 16,550$ ) and €29.00 market value ( $€480,000 \div 16,550$ ). Therefore for each square metre of floor area that it acquires at existing use value, the local authority realises a net monetary value of €26.10 ( $€29.00 - €2.90$ ).

If the local authority decides to acquire 20 apartments as follows -

5 No. 3-bed, 100 sq. m. each: total 500 sq. m
8 No. 2-bed, 80 sq. m. each: total 640 sq.m
7 No. 1-bed, 65 sq. m. each : total 455 sq.m

that is, a total of 1,595 sq. m., the total net monetary value realised by the local authority would be €41,629.5 ( $€26.10 \times 1,595$ ). This is a slight shortfall (€1,570.5) in the net monetary value of €43,200 which should be achieved. The shortfall should be deducted from the building costs payable to the developer.

However, in a case where the local authority acquires 20 apartments as follows -

10 No. 3-bed, 100 sq. m. each: total 1000 sq. m
10 No. 2 bed, 80 sq.m. each: total 800 sq. m

that is, a total of 1,800 sq. m., the total net monetary value realised by the local authority in this instance would be €46,980 ( $€26.10 \times 1,800$ ). This exceeds the required net monetary value of €43,200 and in this instance the excess sum (€3,780) should be paid to the developer in addition to the building costs.

It should be noted that where the net monetary value would not be achieved by the local authority by taking 10% of units of the preferred kind (e.g. 2 bedroom units), the balance should be achieved through an increased discount being given by the developer on those units: it is not appropriate for the local authority to require more than 10% of the units via a Part V agreement where the developer does not wish this.

Where 10% of the units is an uneven number e.g. 6.5 (the development comprises 65 units) and the developer does not wish to sell the rounded up number of units – 7 - to the local authority, 6 units should be acquired, with the appropriate additional discount, calculated as set out above.

Leasing arrangements

Where the Part V agreement is for the leasing of units to the local authority from the developer, the net monetary value must be realised by the local authority in the form of a discount from the normal market rent over the period of the lease. It should be noted that such discount is in addition to the normal discount obtained by the local authority in respect of maintenance, management and void periods specified in the lease.

3.4 Compensation

The compensation to be paid to the developer for the land is calculated in accordance with section 96(6); it will normally be the existing use value on the date permission was granted but a higher cost may be paid in some particular cases e.g. land purchased before 25 August 1999, where the specific conditions of section 96(6)(a) are met.

3.5 Construction costs

The construction costs to be paid to the developer in respect of the construction of units are set out in section 96(3)(d)(ii), i.e.

“the costs, including normal construction and development costs and profit on those costs, calculated at open market rates that would have been incurred by the planning authority had it retained an independent builder to undertake the works, including the appropriate share of any common development works, as agreed between the authority and the developer.”

It should be noted that while Circular AHS 2/05 of 8th September 2005 referred to the payment of a developer’s profit in addition to a builder’s profit, the above provision does not provide for a developer’s profit, as it refers to the cost that would have been incurred by the local authority had it retained an independent builder to undertake the works. The advice in Circular AHS 2/05 in relation to developer’s profit is therefore no longer relevant and is rescinded.

Table B below is a sample of the calculation of compensation payable by the local authority to the developer for a housing unit.

Table B

Nature of Costs.
1. Normal Construction Costs (ex. VAT & builders profit)			140,000
2. Builders’ Profit (dependent on tender climate – for purpose of example say 7.5%)			10,500
3. Development Costs (as applicable)
3.1 Professional Fees including Legal Fees		5,000
3.2 Service Connections		3,000
3.3 Development Contributions		1,000
3.4 Site Investigations		500
3.5 Planning Fees and Charges		500
3.6 Financing Charges		5000	15,000
4. Sub-Total			165,500
5. Land Costs (existing use value)			2,000
6. Sub-Total			167,500
7. VAT @ 13.5%			22,613
Total			190,113

Notes:

1. Construction costs include costings related to: Sub-structures; Super-structures; External Works; Site development works; Abnormal works; Indirect project costs. Includes appropriate share of any common development works.
2. Builder's profit should be agreed based on open market rates that would have been incurred by the local authority had it retained an independent builder to undertake the works.
3. Attributable development costs include design team fees; Service connections; Development contributions (if applicable); Site investigation; Financing charges; Legal expenses; Homebond registration (or approved equivalent); Planning fees/charges.

Builder's profit should be a reasonable profit, determined by reference to prices for work pertaining to competitive tenders for similar work current in the locality. The unit cost ceilings issued to each local authority on 17 July 2015, Circular Housing 28/2015, and any updated cost ceilings issued by the Department, should be a guide in this matter.

3.6 Contracts and Conveyancing

Matters of contracts between the applicant and the local authority should be addressed at an early stage, to avoid subsequent delays. The developer should initiate the process of issuing conveyancing and purchase contracts as early as possible in the process. In addition, both the local authority and the applicant should nominate a designated individual who will ensure that all the steps are in place to complete the transfer and early occupation of houses. This will ensure that nominees are selected for the designated houses and that the requisite legal documents are in place.

One issue worth noting is that under the provisions of Section 23 (1)(b) of the Registration of Title Act 1964, statutory authorities (including Local Authorities and the State) are obliged to apply for first registration of all unregistered land acquired by them. The Registration of Title Act came into effect on 1st January 1967. The Local Authority registers the land with the Property Registration Authority of Ireland. In order to do this they need to show good title and to have the site mapped. Where a site is not registered with Property Registration Authority of Ireland, it is important to address the matter at an early stage to avoid subsequent delays.

3.7 Amendment of a Part V agreement

As stated in the Guidelines on Application of Part V of Planning and Development Act 2000, after 1 September 2015, to developments granted permission prior to 1 September 2015, issued on 4 May 2016, a Part V agreement may subsequently be amended with the agreement of both parties.

Chapter 2 Pre-Application Consultation

2.1 Introduction

Pre-application consultation is generally very beneficial and will improve the quality of a subsequent planning application. It is in the interest of the planning authority and the applicant that the latter has the maximum amount of relevant information on the application process itself, development plan objectives and other relevant considerations prior to making a planning application. This Chapter deals with the pre-application stage of the planning application process.

2.2 Making information available to potential applicants

Outside of, or before, actual consultation, it is important that planning authorities make the maximum amount of relevant information available to potential applicants to assist them in relation to a possible planning application. Apart from the statutory requirement to maintain the planning register<sup>7</sup> and to make copies of the development plan available for inspection or purchase<sup>8</sup>, it is very much in the interest of both the planning authority and the prospective applicant that the latter should be able to readily access all relevant background information. Planning authorities should ensure that not only is all such information easily accessible in the vicinity of the public counter, together with desks or tables to facilitate examination of large plans or maps, but that trained staff are available to answer queries of a general nature. It is also desirable that planning authorities would make much of this information available through their websites, as doing so will greatly facilitate access at a time and place convenient to customers and will relieve the pressure at public counters.

Ancillary information, such as local area plans, DEHLG planning leaflets, Government directives and guidelines, Record of Protected Structures, heritage and conservation maps (including information on Special Areas of Conservation, etc.) should also be provided near the public counter and on-line, either on the planning authorities' websites or through relevant links. Where plans/studies have been prepared (such as Integrated Framework Plans or Local Area Plans), these also should be available for viewing at the public counter.

2.3 Pre-application consultation: general

Pre-application consultation in its broadest sense covers a range of contacts between potential applicants and the planning authority, which can include contact/discussion/communication face-to-face, by telephone, letter, fax, or email. Very frequently potential applicants will contact a planning authority with general queries and the availability of assistance here is a valuable and helpful service to the public and may avoid the necessity, on the prospective applicant's part, to seek more elaborate consultation. Planning authorities should ensure that staff are readily available to deal with such casual enquiries. A number of planning authorities offer informal planning advice through clinics, sometimes held in local offices. It is important to ensure that the planning staff that attend such clinics are given appropriate training to deal in an efficient and helpful manner with the public. The type of consultation provided will vary greatly, depending on the nature and scale of the proposed development, and on the staff resources available to the planning authority. Every effort should be made to facilitate, as far as is practicable, reasonable demands for pre-application consultations, and planning authorities should use whatever format is considered appropriate to their circumstances to facilitate such requests. Efforts should also be made, however, to provide consultation in the form that it is requested. Requests for consultations should be acceptable by telephone or in writing. Whatever form of consultation is requested, e.g. a meeting, a telephone conversation or response to an e-mail, planning authorities should aim to facilitate such requests as soon as possible, but in any event within 2-3 weeks.

Some of the above communications will constitute section 247 consultations while some will not. Paragraph 2.5 below attempts to clarify this issue, while promoting the greatest flexibility for planning authorities.

The provision of pre-application consultations does have resource implications for planning authorities, but such consultations merit investment of resources because of the overall benefits to the planning system, particularly in terms of improved quality of planning applications and development proposals.

The Department's Architectural Heritage Protection Guidelines for Planning Authorities (2004) should be consulted in relation to pre-application consultations involving protected structures<sup>9</sup>.

2.4 Benefits of pre-application consultation

Pre-application consultation has many benefits. Such consultations will generally improve the quality of a subsequent planning application and will ideally obviate the necessity for seeking additional information. They provide the applicant/agent with an opportunity to discuss/consult on the merits of a proposal for development at an early stage and to avoid wasting time and money on a development proposal that has no chance of success. Such consultations also allow the planning authority an opportunity to play a proactive role in guiding a project from its inception in accordance with proper planning and sustainable development principles.

More specifically, consultations can be of value in:

- Applying development plan/local area plan objectives to a particular site, and especially assessing how the design treatment responds to the local context, thus allowing the planning authority to input to design and layout at an early stage;
- Co-ordinating the various local authority inputs to a complex or large-scale proposed development (see also para. 2.7 below);
- Informing the applicant about local policy documents such as design guides, Action Area Plans, framework plans;
- Suggesting that further specialist advice be sought, e.g. in relation to conservation of the built or natural environment;
- Advising prospective applicants of procedural requirements, such as:
  - Planning application requirements, particularly in relation to protected structures;
  - Necessity to carry out Environmental Impact Assessment in certain cases;
  - Necessity to obtain IPPC licence or waste licence in certain cases;
  - Need to comply with other planning guidelines, where relevant, e.g. Retail Planning Guidelines, Sustainable Rural Housing Guidelines, Childcare Facilities Guidelines;
  - Implications of Building Control legislation, including provisions in relation to fire safety and access for the disabled (including, following the enactment/commencement of the Building Control Act 2007, provisions regarding Disability Access Certificates);
  - The necessity to ensure that the design implications of accessibility for all are addressed in the approach routes to buildings, including the location of car parking and other related issues; the National Disability Authority's publication "Building for Everyone" offers good practice on this issue; consultation with representative organisations of people with disabilities may also be of assistance;
  - Application of Major Accidents Directive in certain cases;
  - Possible exemptions for minor developments under section 5 of the Planning Act, and the mechanism for seeking a declaration that a particular development is exempted.

The number and nature of requests for further information may reveal, in particular planning authorities, other general matters that could benefit from discussion in pre-application consultations.

The carrying out of consultations cannot, however, prejudice the performance by a planning authority of any other of its functions under the Planning Act or under ancillary regulations. The prospective applicant should be reminded of this and in particular reminded that the planning authority is obliged to take into account, in determining any subsequent application, submissions which may be received from third parties and prescribed bodies.

2.5 Section 247 consultations

Section 247 of the Planning Act provides that an applicant who has an interest in land may request a pre-application consultation regarding a proposed development and that the planning authority should not unreasonably withhold agreement to enter into such a consultation. More often than not an applicant who seeks a more formal consultation, of the type envisaged by section 247, will seek a face-to-face meeting with a planner. Accordingly section 247 consultations will frequently take the form of individual meetings held between planning officials and applicants/agents.

However there may be instances where both the applicant and the authority are happy to carry out such a consultation without a face-to-face meeting, e.g. over the telephone or by e-mail correspondence: the Act does not preclude this.

For a consultation to be deemed a section 247 consultation, the Planning Act requires that the applicant has an interest in the land concerned and that he/she wishes to consult about a particular proposed development.

The Planning Act also provides that in a section 247 consultation the planning authority must advise on:

- The procedures involved in considering a planning application;
- Any requirements of the permission regulations e.g. site and newspaper notices, documentation to be forwarded including maps, drawings and EIS where required;
- The relevant objectives of the development plan.

The Act also provides, most importantly, that a record must be kept of a section 247 consultation and that the record should be associated with the planning application file, should an application be made subsequently.

The Act allows planning authorities to meet their obligations in relation to section 247 consultations by means of planning clinics where planning officials meet the public with or without appointment. If the planning authority decides to carry out pre-application consultations under section 247 in the form of planning clinics, it must publish notice of the times and locations where discussions are to be held in one or more newspapers circulating in its area at least once a year. Not every face-to-face meeting at a planning clinic will constitute a section 247 consultation, as the potential applicant may merely be seeking some general advice. However, where the potential applicant wishes to consult about a specific proposed development on a specific site, this brings the consultation under section 247 of the Act and the requirements of the section should be adhered to, in particular in relation to keeping a written record of the discussion.

As stated above, requests for consultations should be facilitated as speedily as possible so that where a meeting with the area planner is requested, such a meeting should ideally be arranged within 2-3 weeks. Where the area planner is unavailable, arrangements should be made to provide a properly briefed substitute; the keeping of full, detailed notes of the consultation will be important in such circumstances.

It should be noted that, in addition to other requirements of the ethics code<sup>10</sup> a member or official of the planning authority is guilty of an offence if he or she takes or seeks any favour, benefit or payment, directly or indirectly, in connection with any consultation or advice provided under section 247.

2.6 Submission of details in advance of consultations

To ensure that a consultation will be productive, the applicant may be required to submit a certain minimum level of documentation (depending on the scale of the proposal) in advance of a pre-application consultation. A guidance document in relation to such requirements should be available on the planning authority's website, which lists the range of maps, drawing types/scales and other details normally required in relation to different categories of site and development proposal. The guidance should also state the period in advance of the meeting that the documentation will require to be submitted.

2.7 Pre-application meetings: who should attend?

This will depend on the nature and scale of the proposed development, but as a general rule:

- Senior planning staff should attend in the case of large-scale or complex developments, or where the site has given rise to significant issues in the past;
- Representatives from all relevant local authority sections/departments (e.g. traffic or sanitary services engineers) should attend in the case of large-scale or complex proposals. This not only saves the applicant time in arranging a series of consultations, but perhaps more importantly, facilitates a co-ordinated approach by the authority; the detailed technical requirements of one department may have consequences for the layout or design that affects other departments.

<sup>10</sup> Local Government Act 2001: Code of Conduct for Employees (DEHLG, 2004).

- Both Housing and Planning representatives need to be involved in pre-application meetings involving Part V of the Planning Act (see para. 2.10 below);
- Heritage/conservation officers should be involved in cases involving protected structures, zones or sites of archaeological interest, and protected sites (such as Natural Heritage Areas or Special Protected Areas).

Planning authorities should ensure the availability of suitably sized and located meeting rooms to facilitate consultations.

2.8 How should a pre-application meeting be structured?

The aim of both parties should be to identify any potential issues arising from a development proposal at a sufficiently early stage in the design process in order to avoid needless delays and/or costs after an application has been lodged.

If it is clear from the development plan that the proposal is acceptable in principle, especially in the case of relatively small developments, the prospective applicant may be encouraged to bring reasonably detailed design drawings to the consultation.

Planning authorities will know from experience what issues are likely to arise in the case of the most common types of development in their areas and will be able to advise prospective applicants in advance on the kind of information which will be needed if consultations are to be productive. For example, in the case of rural housing, applicants should be able to demonstrate that the proposed site can satisfactorily accommodate drainage, can be accessed safely without creating a traffic hazard and can be sensitively incorporated into the landscape.

In the case of larger proposed developments, or where it is not certain that the proposal would be acceptable, it is important that issues of principle be resolved before proceeding to more detailed design issues. In such cases, the proponent should clearly explain the rationale for the proposed development. Equally, the planning officer will need to be explicit about what are “sticking points” from a development plan viewpoint. Relevant national policy which applies to the development should also be explained. While both sides should endeavour to find a constructive solution to problems, in some cases it may not be possible to reconcile the two positions. In such a case, it may be necessary for the planning authority to indicate that the proposal is unlikely to be considered favourably.

2.9 Keeping a record of what was discussed

As indicated above, section 247 of the Planning Act requires the planning authority to keep a written record of pre-application consultations under the section, including the names of those who participated. A copy of such record (and any documentation submitted) must be retained and placed on the planning file in the event of a subsequent planning application in respect of the proposed development. It will be necessary for the planning authority to have in place for records of pre-application consultation an appropriate filing system, that may be easily queried/searched when a planning application is received. As records of pre-application consultation form part of the planning file, they also should be forwarded to the Board in the event of an appeal.

The clear intention behind the requirement to keep a record is to inform those involved in determining any subsequent application, particularly if they were not directly involved in the prior consultation. The keeping of records can also ensure consistency of approach in situations where staff turnover is an issue or where the particular development proposal has a long time-span.

Key information which should be recorded includes:

- The postal address (where available) or an accurate description of the location. Ideally, if the planning authority has a Geographic Information System, the co-ordinates of a point within the site, or the site boundaries, should be digitised so that it can be easily traced in the event of a subsequent application;
- An indication of the area of the site;
- A succinct description of the nature and scale of the proposed development (e.g. number of housing units, or amount of floor space);
- A list of the documentation submitted describing the proposal;
- An indication of whether the proposal is in accordance with the development plan;
- An indication of whether key design or other issues remained to be resolved;
- An indication of whether further specialist advice is required (e.g. from the Heritage Service of the DEHLG);
- An indication of whether an environmental or retail impact statement is mandatory or likely to be needed.

Where design team acting for the prospective developer submits its own account of the consultation, this should also be kept with the file. It would be important to draw attention to any significant errors or misunderstandings at the earliest opportunity, particularly if the prospects for a successful application were overestimated.

Best practice example

Limerick County Council uses a computerised system to keep detailed records of all pre-planning consultations held in the Council. Notes of the consultation are linked to the Council's GIS to facilitate retrieval later, and any documents handed over at the meeting are scanned in. The system can also track the time taken from the request for a consultation to the date when the consultation takes place.

Management structures need to be put in place to inform applicants whether, when the planning application is received, there has to be a material departure from the approach adopted by the planning authority at the pre-application consultation. Such a departure might be required if the subsequent application is substantially different from that originally discussed, or if planning authority needs to respond to valid issues raised by the public or by statutory consultees following submission of the application<sup>11</sup>.

2.10 Part V consultations

The role of pre-application discussions in negotiating agreements for the provision of social and affordable housing required under Part V of the 2000 Planning Act (as amended by the 2002 Act) is discussed in Chapter 10 of Part V of the Planning and Development Act 2000 – Housing Supply: Guidelines for Planning Authorities (DELGH 2000)<sup>12</sup>. Key points include:

- The need to develop a shared approach between the applicant and the planning authority (and an approved housing body, where relevant);
- The need for the planning authority to have regard to the objectives set out in its Housing Strategy;
- The need for the planning authority to have regard to the overall coherence of the proposed development and to the views of the developer in relation to the impact of the proposed agreement on the development;

- The importance of arranging joint planning and housing teams to negotiate Part V agreements. Where they are available, local authority architects should be also involved to ensure the design quality of the housing to be handed over to the authority;
- The importance of recording the essential elements of the proposed agreement.

Further guidance on Part V implementation issues, set out in Circular AHS 4/06<sup>13</sup>, emphasises the importance of undertaking pre-planning consultations on Part V and sets out advice on how a range of matters relating to Part V should be dealt with efficiently in the planning process.

2.11 Pre-auction consultations

When a development site is put up for auction, prospective purchasers may seek consultations with the planning authority before making a bid. Such prospective purchasers should instead be referred to relevant information, such as development plan zoning objectives, specific local objectives, local area plans etc. and should be encouraged to seek independent professional advice. Prospective purchasers will not in any case have a legal interest in the land and their plans will probably not be sufficiently advanced to engage in pre-planning discussions. Pre-application consultations could of course be arranged with the new purchaser after the site has been sold and the development proposals have been advanced.

In very specific instances, for example in the case of sites of high priority for the planning authority in relation to the need for urban renewal or large green-field sites, the planning authority or the seller or auctioneer may consider it appropriate to prepare a development brief listing the authority's objectives for the site, and to make this brief available to all interested parties.
