Bioengineering with Anyone 4 Science

Bioengineering - where engineers work with doctors to design and make devices that make people's lives better. Imagine if you were born without a hand or if you lost one in an accident and you needed an artificial hand. What would you want it to be like? What would you want it to be able to do? At this workshop we will discuss these questions, draw up a specification and each participant will build an artificial hand to meet our spec.

Takes place via Zoom

Modern Women in Modern Times: Women and Social Norms in American Cities, 1900-1930

A talk by Cecilia Hartsell. The industrial revolution changed the character of America, drawing workers from farms to cities. This talk will examine the experience of urban female workers in the early 1900's through the lenses of class and race, delving into the types of employment they could secure, how society viewed their efforts to build new urban lives and how social norms were accordingly stretched, broken and re-defined.

Helena Molony: A Radical Life 1883-1967

Mark International Women's Day in this Decade of Centenaries by joining Nell Regan as she talks about one of the many remarkable women who were public figures at the time. Her biography Helena Molony: A Radical Life 1883 - 1967 (Arlen House) was a 2017 Irish Independent Book of the Year and tells the fascinating story of Helena Molony. Regan will also explore why the histories of these remarkable women and their organisations have only been recognised and written about in recent years.
