Tampering with a gas meter poses a serious safety risk to you, your family, your neighbours, and the general public.

It's dangerous.

Public safety is the main priority for Gas Networks Ireland. A tampered gas meter creates a risk of a gas explosion, which can result in serious injury, or even death. Those who tamper with gas meters not only put themselves at risk, but also other occupants of the property, neighbours, and members of the general public.

It's illegal.

By law, only Gas Networks Ireland representatives and Registered Gas Installers are authorised to work on natural gas meters and gas pipe work. If you tamper with any gas meter, you will be guilty of a criminal offence and so liable for prosecution. It is also illegal to ask, pay or allow someone else to tamper with your meter. If convicted of an offence under the Energy Act legislation, you may be liable for a fine of up to €5,000 and/or imprisonment for up to six months.

It's costly.

When caught, you will have to pay for both the damaged gas meter and the gas stolen. Tampering results in increased gas bills for all other customers.

What should I do if I suspect meter tampering is taking place?

You can confidentially report any suspected cases of meter tampering to Gas Networks Ireland on 1850 200 694 or at www.gasnetworks.ie/meter-tampering. Any information Gas Networks Ireland has on the identity of those undertaking tampering may be passed to the Gardai.

Call 1850 200 694 if you see someone interfering with a gas meter.
